Meanderings

By Wash Fayette

I have heard the praises of pumpkin pie sung, as well as other kinds of pie, including cherry pie, but I have heard little about ripe tomato pie.

I had ripe tomato pie for lunch today, or rather it was part of the luncheon, and was it delicious! One of my favorite kinds of pie is cherry, but ripe tomato pie is a close second when it is properly seasoned and baked, like the one I had today.

I hope that of lot of you folks, if you have never tried ripe tomato pie, will have at least one before the present tomato season ends.

Some two months ago Mrs. W. E. Roberts, 817 Yeoman Street, cut off the summer's growth of a clump of peonies on her premises, and a few days ago she was amazed to see a blossom on some new growth which had come up since the peonies were trimmed back.

The blossom was not as large as those appearing in the spring, but was perfectly formed and has attracted much attention among those who have seen it.

Sunday Traffic In Ohio Kills 20

(By the Associated Press)
At least 20 Ohioans were killed in traffic accidents in one of the state's worst week-ends on highways and streets this year.

Eight persons died Saturday, three more Saturday night, and the remainder Sunday in collisions, grade crossing crashes, motorcycle wrecks and other kinds of motor accidents.

Japs Start Fast For Red Prisoners

TOKYO, Sept. 27—(AP)—An estimated 100 Japanese today began a fast on the stone steps of a Buddhist Temple in the hope of persuading the Russians to repatriate some 500,000 Nipponese war prisoners still held.

The fast climaxed a parade of some 1,500 men and women through the city. They carried placards that read: "Send back our fathers and husbands. The placards were not addressed to anyone in particular.

WHS Band Show Is 'Wonderful'

The boys and girls of the 105-piece crack WHS marching band today were back in their class rooms, tired and a bit sleepy but happy, after their great adventure—the Sunday trip to Cleveland where they put on a show before the halves of the Cleveland Browns-Chicago Rockets pro football game.

And, their parents, still bleary-eyed and drugged from hours of waiting that started long before daylight, were going about their workaday routine with less than normal enthusiasm, to put it mildly.

The band left the high school here at 4 A. M. Sunday in three big special Greyhound busses and rolled right straight through to Cleveland with only brief stops.

They arrived at the Cleveland Stadium entrance at 8:45 A. M. and took nearly two hours stretching their legs and taking in the sights in the immediate vicinity.

The Catholic members of the band, thus, had an opportunity to go to mass at the nearby Cleveland Cathedral, which was something for them remember.

At 10 o'clock they started their drills on the stadium field, and kept at it for two hours. During the practice, they developed their formations for the combined presentation of the band and the famous Musical Majorettes of the Browns.

The chaperones, Bandmaster and Mrs. William Clift, Superintendent and Mrs. A. B. Murray and Principal and Mrs. Stephen Brown, kept a close watch on the youngsters during their idle time, but there was plenty of opportunity to gaze at the sights of Ohio's biggest city.

The band had a light lunch in the dressing rooms at noon and got ready for their big moment at 1:45 P. M.

Natty in their bright blue uniforms with their white stripes and shining white shoes, the band marched into the stadium just as the pre-game workouts of the two teams was finished.

Playing marching songs as the band moved at quick-step around the track that circles the gridiron, the music, strong and sure, filled the vast stadium.

Never before has a WHS band put on a better show. That was the unanimous verdict of the more than 300 Washingtonians who filled a section in the stadium.

From the time it came into the stadium, the crowd of nearly 40,000 cheered and applauded with enthusiasm that nearly drowned out the sound of the music. The

'Won't Get Out' Allies Say to Russian Stand

Blockade Tightening Is Soviet Answer To Note of Ultimatum

By JOSEPH E. DYAN
PARIS, Sept. 27—(AP)—The western powers sent the Berlin crisis to the Security Council today and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin immediately expressed fear it might wreck the United Nations.

GERMAN REACTION
BERLIN, Sept. 27—(AP)—Berlin's city government told the four occupying powers today they should get out of Berlin if they cannot settle their difference.

The proposal was in a resolution drafted by the executive branch of the government and read to a meeting of the city council by acting mayor Ferdinand Friedensburg.

In Berlin, a Russian-controlled newspaper echoed his words, saying if the Western Powers force a UN debate on Berlin "a wedge will be driven into the UN which may split the entire world organization."

If such a thing should come to pass and if the "black fury" of atomic war should follow, Bevin told the United Nations assembly, the fault would be Russia's and Russia's alone.

But, he added:

"It is better to have our difficulties now than to live in a fool's paradise."

A big four delegate said the Western Powers—Britain, France and the United States—expect to open their attack on Russia's three-month-old blockade of Berlin Thursday in the security council.

Plans for Handling
Alexandre Parodi, France's Security Council delegate, said present plans call for handing the Security Council the problem under a section of the UN Charter which deals with threats to peace and international security. That means the west is risking a Soviet veto—or a walkout.

Last night of threatening world peace by her actions in Berlin. They re-emphasized their determination to stay in the city—an island of four-power territory deep in the Russian zone—and reserved the right to take such steps as may be necessary to do it.

Bevin's speech—so emotional that his voice broke as he called on Russia to "open up the world and let light and knowledge come in"—got a roaring, cheering reception from the delegates. All the big powers had their chief delegates on the floor for the event. Listening in were U. S. Secretary of State Marshall, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

Russian Strides Out
Vishinsky's face was grim as he strode from the hall after the speech.

Bevin said an "onslaught is being made directly or indirectly on the rights of peoples and individuals. It is we who are on the defensive. It is we who are victims of a cold war waged against us all from Moscow."

"The threat of the war of nerves hangs over us in the activities of the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) and other bodies."

The Allied decision to break off negotiations over the Berlin crisis with the Russians and take the issue to the U. N. was announced after two conferences yesterday among Secretary of State Marshall, French Foreign Minister Schuman and Bevin.

ALLIES STAND FIRM
BERLIN, Sept. 27—(AP)—The western powers will stand firm in Berlin against the Soviets, foreign and German political circles here predict.

The United States and Britain are expected to throw a mighty effort into the western air shuttle to keep the Soviet-blockaded city supplied with food, fuel and other necessities.

The firm stand and the airlift, these circles say, will be the western allies' answer to the question "what is in the cards for Berlin?"

World Tension Affects Stocks

Cattle Shipments Hit New Record

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—Stocks fell from a few cents to more than $3 a share in the stock market today as a reflection of the dispute between Russia and western powers in the Berlin crisis.

Railroad issues were the leaders in the downward movement with some of the major carriers selling from $1 to more than $3 lower.

At the same time stocks of oil, metal and steel companies sold lower by more than $1 a share.

Trading was fairly active, with 350,000 shares changing hands the first hour.

As a group the aircraft stocks were unchanged to a few cents higher, standing out against the lower trend of the rest of the market, but there was not much demand for these securities.

CATTLE SHIPMENT
CHICAGO, Sept. 27—(AP)—Cattle shipments to the nation's 12 leading terminals totaled 133,300 today. This topped the previous high total of deliveries for the year—an estimated 129,000 head last Monday.

USED CAR MARKET
NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—No sharp break in the used car market is in sight, Charles Hillard, of Fort Worth, Tex., former president of the National Used Car Dealers Association, says.

He presented a country-wide analysis of automotive trade conditions to bear out his belief, at the opening session of the association's annual convention.

While denying rumors of overstocking, he said a seasonal price decline of about three per cent is underway—about equal to that in the fall of 1947.

Four Swift & Co. employees at Columbus and two Lancaster residents were indicted several weeks ago in Columbus on grand larceny charges in connection with meat thefts. The Fairfield Grand Jury said its investigation showed some of the meat was purchased here.

Mrs. Bauer was charged in connection with the display of punch boards. Neither she nor her husband could be reached for comment. Captain Bauer, a veteran officer, was one of more than 50 witnesses who testified before the grand jury.

Meanwhile, at Columbus, the office of Gov. Thomas J. Herbert said no formal request had been received from Mayor Fred Von Stein for an investigation of the Mayor's office. The grand jury recommended Von Stein and Police Chief Sam Hutler be cited for "gross neglect of duty" and "contending gambling."

Shortly after the grand jury reported, Mayor Von Stein announced he wrote Governor Herbert asking for a "complete, thorough and immediate investigation" of his office.

Only Six Civil War Veterans At 82nd GAR Encampment

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 27—(AP)—Business sessions of the 82nd annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic open here today with the gavel being taken over by the youngest of the six Civil War veterans in attendance.

The presiding officer will be 99-year-old Theodore A. Penland, of Portland, Ore., senior vice commander.

Oldest of the half dozen attending the reunion is James A. Hard, 107, of Rochester, N. Y. Hard arrived here in a special plane as guest of the Gannett newspapers of New York.

Suspect Arrested After 10-Month Hunt

CANTON, Sept. 27—(AP)—A 10-month search for a man wanted on first degree murder charges in a case shooting here has ended in Helena, Mo., where a notice in a detective magazine resulted in the man's arrest, Detective Capt. William D. Harrison said today.

Harrison said the Stone County, Mo., sheriff had informed him Armand P. Menna, 53, was held in jail at Helena where he had been operating a hotel.

Menna was indicted Jan. 5 on the first degree murder charge in the slaying of Herbert Mayo, 27, during an argument over the purchase of a bottle of champagne in a cafe last Nov. 12, Harrison said. He added that officers would be sent to return Menna to Canton.

Reign of Terror Sweeps Albania

Cloud over Balkans With Tito Defiance

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 27—(AP)—Resistance to the Albanian government's split with Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia has caused a reign of terror in Albania, according to press reports here.

The reports said Albanian authorities have issued orders for their Militia to shoot on the spot anyone showing pro-Yugoslav sympathies.

The Montenegrain peoples front newspaper Pobeda, published in Tsjetinje, capital of Montenegro, near the Albanian border, was the source of the dispatches printed in Belgrade.

The newspaper said many Albanians were fleeing into Yugoslavia, including army officers and Militia men. It was one of these Militia who said he had received orders to shoot anyone showing sympathy for Tito.

Albania has aligned herself with the Cominform (Communist international information bureau) in its denunciation of Tito. The split has cut the tiny country off from land communication with the other Soviet satellites, since Albania's only neighbors are Yugoslavia and Greece.

The reports supplement unofficial information received here during the week-end that there are many armed bands in the mountains of the wild and little known country.

5 Students Killed As Plane Crashes

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 27—(AP)—Five students of Fresno, Calif., state college were killed yesterday when a private plane crashed in the suburban southwest Portland hills.

The young men were flying back to California after attending a Saturday football game here between Fresno and the University of Portland.

The crash scene was littered with gay pennants, skull caps and megaphones the five had used while rooting for their school at the game Saturday afternoon.

Crime Cars Abandoned In Cincinnati, Belief

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27—(AP)—Two cars identified as being connected with separate crimes, a Michigan slaying and a Dayton, O., robbery and cutting, were held here today after being found abandoned.

Detective Chief Clem Merz said Dayton, O., officers had identified one car as that stolen by three men at Dayton Friday after they slashed the driver and threw him from the machine.

Sunday Politics On Peace Theme

Campaign Goes On In Both Main Camps

(By the Associated Press)
The two major party presidential candidates returned to political campaigning today after a Sabbath lull in which both made peace pleas.

World peace is "more important than whether I'm president of the United States," President Truman told a dinner of Texas Democrats at San Antonio last night.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said in a statement at San Francisco that America is united on the Paris peace front. He called for peace prayers in the face of the "grave crisis in Berlin."

Both candidates shied away from outright politics in their Sunday utterances.

But former Speaker Sam Rayburn, now Democratic leader of the House, told the San Antonio dinner that a change in American leadership would "make other nations think we have weakened in our foreign policy."

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters accompanying the president it was mere coincidence that Mr. Truman was speaking for peace at about the time

Bernadotte Plan, Acceptance Urged

PARIS, Sept. 27—(AP)—British Foreign Secretary Bevin today urged speedy United Nations action on Count Folke Bernadotte's recommendations for Palestine. He called it "the best hope for healing the breach" between Arabs and Jews.

Bevin reiterated his country's support for the Holy Land solution offered by the slain mediator "in its entirety" in Britain's major policy address to the general assembly.

An American poll of many UN delegations showed support for the Bernadotte Palestine Peace Plan, and informed source said today.

A preliminary survey carried out by the United States among a large number of support for the Bernadotte Plan.

Boy Critically Injured In Roller-Coaster Fall

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27—(AP)—A 14-year-old boy, Edward Brown, was alive but in serious condition today after tumbling from a roller coaster at Euclid Beach Park. A tree broke his fall as he plummeted 55 feet from the coaster at its second turn.

Fire Sweeps Garage

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27—(AP)—Fire swept through a garage adjoining the Charles A. Miller and Sons Funeral Home last night, causing damage estimated at $25,000.

Faster-than-Sound Jet Plane Piloted by Combat Veteran

DAYTON, Sept. 27—(AP)—The man at the controls most of the time when the X-1 research plane flew several hundred miles faster than the speed of sound was Capt. Charles Yeager of Hamlin, W. Va.

The flight test division of the Air Material Command at Wright-Patterson Air Base reported today that the 25-year-old air force hero was one of about four persons who had flown the rocket-driven X-1.

Wright-Patterson did not know the names of the others.

It said, however, that Captain Yeager, a veteran of 64 combat missions in World War II, had done most of the test-flying of the rocket at Muroc, Calif.

Air Secretary Symington disclosed Saturday the plane had been flown through the air apparently at speeds between 763 and 1,000 miles an hour. The speed of sound at sea level is 763.

Captain Yeager is married and the father of two children. He received his wings in March, 1943, and served 16 months in the European theater.

Public relations officers at Wright Field said Captain Yeager flew a P-51 in his combat missions during the war, and that he was shot down over enemy territory on March 5, 1944.

After being shot down young Yeager escaped to a neutral country, later rejoining his outfit. He was reported missing in action for three months.

In his speech regarding the X-1 Saturday, Secretary Symington in enumerating achievements of the air force in the last year mentioned "an airplane flying hundreds of miles faster than speed of sound, which is 763 miles per hour at sea level."

That is all he had to say about the plane, but it constituted first official reports of the speed being reached by the "flying research laboratory."

Original design called for the X-1 to reach a speed of 1,107 miles an hour at 40,000 feet altitude and 1,700 miles an hour at 80,000 feet. The experimental plane is hitched beneath a B-29 for the tests and is carried aloft and then released when 25,000 feet or higher up.

The pilot has about enough fuel for two and one-half minutes at top speed, then glides down between 300 and 400 miles an hour and lands at a speed of 160 miles an hour.

There are only two X-1 planes, so far as is known—one being operated by the air force and the other by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Heart Disease Ohio's Worst Killer

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27—(AP)—Heart trouble—the principal cause of death in Ohio in 1947—killed nearly 5,000 more men than women.

The annual Ohio vital statistics report, released today by the state health department, noted 26,395 Ohioans died of heart ailments during 1947—15,660 of them men and 10,734 women.

Cancer, the second killer last year, took a toll of 10,995. Deaths from cancer were about evenly divided between the sexes—with 5,355 male victims as compared with 5,640 female.

Almost exactly as many men as women were killed by the three next heaviest causes of death. Cerebral hemorrhage took the lives of 8,362 persons in the state, nephritis 4,678 and pneumonia 2,933.

Deaths from heart ailments were greatest for men in the 35-year-old and older group while for women they were heaviest in the 55-year-old and older group.

Most deaths for children under one year of age were caused by premature birth, which killed 2,112. Congenital malformation, which took the lives of 982, was next.

For persons five to 24, auto accidents caused most fatalities, killing 452. Auto deaths increased gradually from 55 in the 5 to 9-year-old group to 214 in the 20 to 25-year-old group.

Tuberculosis took the heaviest toll among people 25 to 34-years-old. In that age group, more women died of tuberculosis than men.

The total deaths in the state last year—exclusive of stillbirths—was 42,776 for white males; 33,643 for white females; 3,147 for non-white males and 2,501 for non-white females.

The Nation Today

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

A crude sign was found the other day pinned on the garden door of No. 10 Downing Street, famous residence of many generations of British prime ministers and now occupied by Clement Attlee. The notice advised him: "Moscow is bluffing."

The seer who made that sign wasn't the only one who has a notion the Russians are staging an enormous bluff. You hear the remark frequently, generally by folk who hold that the "bluff" should be called by a display of force.

That is a terribly foolish and dangerous assumption. True, there undoubtedly are times when the Muscovites do bluff and I dare say the same is true of the western democracies. Diplomatic strategy has worked that way on occasions. However, the world revolution for the spread of Communism is no bluff. It is the greatest menace mankind has faced.

There was no bluff in the rape of Czechoslovakia, or in the conquest of the rest of eastern Europe. The United States has called the turn in blunt terms on Bolshevik operations in Bulgaria. American Minister Donald R. Heath has delivered to Bulgarian Foreign Minister Kolarov a note which accuses the Communist government of Bulgaria with ruthlessly smashing democratic freedom in that country. The communication charges that the Communist there have resorted to the use of "involuntary servitude, banishment, concentration camps, imprisonment, torture and execution."

The occasion for this note was a speech by Kolarov in parliament, blaming the United States for Bulgaria's failure to gain membership in the United Nations. He declared his nation had met its peace treaty obligations scrupulously. The American note said it simply isn't true that Bulgaria has met its treaty obligations.

There is no bluff in the great offensive which the Communists are waging throughout southeast Asia. British Foreign Secretary Bevin declared the other day that the Communists aimed at seizing that great theater. He said this was "part and parcel of the clash between the two philosophies which will keep on breaking out everywhere it can." He announced that Britain intended to fight Communism at every turn. Simultaneously the U. S. State Department has broadcast a sharp counterattack against the Red "drive for power" in southeast Asia.

If America and Britain thought Moscow was bluffing they wouldn't be engaged in such sweeping rearmament programs. British Defense Minister A. V. Alexander startled the House of Commons a couple of days ago with the statement that Britain's rearmament program was moving so fast he had no figures on its cost. Simultaneously the navy, marines and air corps announced urgent campaigns to build up strong reserves in readiness for any war emergency. All men and women who served in Britain's wartime armies are subject to recall.

These preparations don't mean that America and Britain think war is just around the corner. Sir Stafford Cripps, British chancellor of the exchequer, expresses the

Fire Losses Showing Drop In This State

Second Annual Fire Safety Conference On Thursday

Reports indicate that Fayette County has shared the general reduction in fire losses this year as compared with the losses in 1948, a thing which is encouraging with approach of the annual fire safety conference in Ohio.

Joseph B. Hall, general chairman of Governor Herbert's Fire Safety Committee, complimented the people of Ohio on "their fine achievement of reducing fire losses from a record high of $22,000,000 last year to an estimated $18,500,000 this year." He pledged that his state-wide committee representing industry, labor, farm groups, professional fire-fighters and public service organizations, would redouble its efforts to reduce these alarming losses.

Hall is completing arrangements for the Second Annual Fire Safety Conference to be held in University Hall, Ohio State University on Thursday, September 30th, 1949. Five hundred leaders from all fields of activity and from all parts of the state will assess the work done in 1948 and plan 1949 campaign of increased intensity.

Fire Chief George Hall will attend the meeting. The meeting will be addressed by Governor Thomas J. Herbert; by Miss Anita Blair, the blind girl who made national headlines when, two years ago, she was led by her "seeing-eye" dog down the fire escape from the eleventh floor of the burning LaSalle Hotel in Chicago; by Walter Williams, outstanding figure in the business life of Seattle and the State of Washington; and by other authorities in the field of Fire Prevention and Control. "We have had a successful trial run in 1948, Hall said, now we've got to work even harder, fires remain our most dreaded enemy."

Ohioan Berserk Before He Suicides

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 27—(AP)—Frank F. Brakeall, father of 12, killed himself after terrorizing two daughters-in-law, Deputy Sheriff E. R. Baker reported.

Brakeall, 66, a retired state forestry department employee, set fire to his home before ending his life, the deputy said. Brakeall's body was recovered from the ruins.

Frank Brakeall, Jr., 27, said his father struck Mrs. Audie Brakeall, 21, with a butcher knife and threatened another daughter-in-law, Mrs. Carmie Brakeall, 22, with the shotgun.

Then, the son said, the father returned to his home, but refused to admit members of the family who attempted to reason with him.

belief that there is not much possibility of a war soon, though "accidents can always happen."

But the democracies aren't treating the Bolshevik threat as a bluff which can be handled by appeasement.

USDA Blamed For Price of Soap

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27—(AP)—The Soap and Detergent Manufacturers' Association today said the Department of Agriculture was helping to keep soap prices high.

Meeting in a one-day session, the association's leaders yesterday asked the department to restrict the export of soap-making fats, particularly inedible tallow, grease and vegetable fatty acids.

Andrew P. Federline, association secretary, said the export of inedible fats forced manufacturers to buy edible substitutes which cost more and forced up soap prices.

What Are Russia's Ambitions and Plans?

It becomes apparent more and more as the days go by that Russia in her controversy with the western powers, is tremendously concerned with her security problem.

Essentially it begins to appear that Russia's position and perhaps her ambition is to become rigorously isolationist. By that apparently she means to build up an industrial and geographical empire which will make it possible to live entirely within herself, without dependence on any other country and without fear of effective opposition from inside or outside her world.

There seems to be a development that to achieve this she feels she must secure control of the industry and natural resources of Europe along with the manpower of Europe.

Why is Russia so determined to force us out of Berlin? There are several answers. First, Berlin is still the heart of Germany, and is a potent symbol. Second, if we should find our position in Berlin untenable and pull out, the psychological effect not only on the Germans but on other European countries could be extremely serious. Third, gaining control of Berlin and the machinery of government is probably considered by Russia a necessary step to extending control to the main German industrial areas, such as the Ruhr. Fourth, the Russian attitude toward the millions of Germans who have worked with the Western powers since the war is all too clear — and if she ever gets Berlin retaliation on an immense scale can be expected.

As a number of writers have pointed out of late, the Truman doctrine, which is based on the containment of Russia, is not working. The Marshall Plan is obtaining a limited success, but current events are a grave threat to it. This brings up an issue which is likely to come more into the open during the next year or so. That is outright military alliances between the United States and Western European countries—France, Italy, the Benelux group, and the rest. If this should come to pass, it would simply be an extension of the idea that we must get tougher and tougher with Russia if she forces us into it. In some high places, both here and in England, this attitude is believed to be the only hope for an extended peace. The thought is still held that, ideological considerations to one side, the Russian leaders are practical enough to come to terms of some kind if they become convinced that the western powers really mean business, and will see the thing through to the end. This thought is founded, in part, on the belief that Russia is too weak economically to run the risk of an all-out shooting war that would involve the entire world almost from the outset.

The Russians are undoubtedly capitalizing on the fact that this is an election year in the U. S., that a president who is not assured of continuance in office beyond next January loses much of his effectiveness, and that the opposition candidate, even though his chance of election is strong, is still an unofficial person without power to act or to create policy. The Russian press is giving a strong play to the Wallace campaign, in an obvious effort to sell the idea that this country is hopelessly divided. All of this is part of the plan to break down European faith in our resolve.

There are some who have reluctantly come to believe that the Soviet-U.S. conflict is much like that between the irresistible force and the immovable object. But that view is not yet too widely held. However, an incredible amount of work and energy is necessary to preserving the tattered peace of the world.

Inspiration Just Like A Bird

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Inspiration, says Ferde Grofe, is like a little bird.

"If you don't grab him when you can he flies right out the window."

So, Grofe, a master of modern musical composition, doesn't allow the little bird to take to wing.

He carries a musical scratch pad with him wherever he goes and scribbles down tune phrases as they come to him—at home, on trains, in taxis. In this way he carries out the function he best likes—to be a total reporter of his own land.

At 56 the short, roly-poly composer is busy as ever, adding steadily to the total of nearly 200 finished compositions he has published.

Grofe is a kind of musical jack-of-all-trades who became a top hand, one of the first composers to marry modern jazz rhythm with traditional symphonic forms.

But he has done about as well with other people's work as with his own. His arrangement of "Whispering," when he was beating the piano for Paul Whiteman, helped sell 1,500,000 records. His arrangement of "Rhapsody in Blue" brought fame to himself as well as the late George Gershwin.

Grofe is about the least genius-looking genius in the genius market.

"I work best when I am under pressure and when I am inspired," he laughed. "But I inspire easily."

He is still full of gusto and tunes. One class of listeners likes him for his popular songs, such as "Wonderful One." To others he is best known for his semi-long-hair creations like "The Grand Canyon Suite," "Mississippi Suite" and "Symphony in Steel."

It took him three years to compose the "Grand Canyon Suite," one movement of which came to him as he sat under a tree on the Hackensack, N. J., golf course. It takes a symphony orchestra 34 minutes to play it.

On the other hand he turned out "Serenade to Ruth," a six-minute piece, in 23 hours flat. He stood on his feet all night, jotting down notes on a piano top, to finish it.

He is prolific to an extent he doesn't seem quite to realize himself. He has written so many tunes he has forgotten how some of them go and has to be reminded of their names.

Before he began composing what his cello-playing grandfather disdainfully dismissed as "shoo-fly music," Grofe ran away from home at the age of 14. He ushered in a theater, drove a truck and worked in a book bindery and an iron foundry until he returned to the family profession in 1909 as a violinist with the Los Angeles symphony orchestra.

These experiences Grofe remembered later when he began the task of "describing America in music."

Today his chief interest is composing band music, a field he feels has been neglected.

"There are more than 125,000 junior high school bands in America—and perhaps 150,000 senior high school bands. They want new music."

And Ferde can compose it. Like William Shakespeare or Dr. Samuel Johnson he is a business man as well as an artist.

"It's a gold mine," he said, his gray-blue eyes twinkling in a plump Buddha face.

In composing his well known "March for Americans," Grofe said he put down a hundred fragmentary tunes before he felt he had what he wanted.

"Take me a whole week," he complained mildly.

Communist Role for Parents

By George E. Sokolsky

Until we reached the current era of socialization, western society never questioned the function of the parent to rear his own children. In recent years, both Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany—in fact, all the totalitarian states—have insisted upon the right of government to control moral as well as physical conduct.

The growth of bureaucracy in the so-called democracies has increasingly shifted to experts those functions of life which heretofore had been regarded as the domain of the parent. In the field of education, not only the teacher but the education administrator has insisted upon the ignorance and incompetence of the parent. Naturally, most mothers are not experts in the education of their children, not having been trained at teachers' college, Columbia University, which is the center of expertise.

Some years ago, a movement was started to increase the contact of parents and teachers. Associations were organized in schools and meetings have been held at stated periods. Obviously, the experts, namely, the teachers and educational administrators, do most of the talking because they are experts. Most parents are busy maintaining a family, keeping house and few have read all the books on how to rear children and what to do about education; therefore, they cannot talk back when the expert explains that this new method of teaching spelling does not teach the child to spell but will make the child more fit to live in one world or something.

Nevertheless, under our system of life, the child remains the responsibility of the parent. Teachers, psychologists, pediatricians have their place, but they do not replace the parent. Nor has the parent transferred to the state or to a board of education the moral obligation of child-raising. While the state has the legal authority to insist upon compulsory school attendance, it has no right to determine to what kind of school the child shall be sent by its parents. In recent years, educational administrators have succeeded in obtaining powers to enforce a minimum qualification for all schools, even to those which support themselves financially. No powers can prevent a parent from telling the child that a secular, moral education is inadequate for character-building.

The danger to both child and parent lies in the huge cost of educational operations. In short as local taxes do not meet budgetary requirements, first a demand is made for state aid and then for federal aid. As the state and then the federal administration set up funds for local schooling, they also are bound to set up conditions which can be expanded ultimately until local supervision disappears.

In New York State, Governor Dewey has insisted upon increasing the taxing power of local communities so that they may meet this problem. He said of this:

"...The people of our respective communities are expecting higher and higher standards of service from local government. Without close correlation between the spending of public money and the responsibility for collecting it through taxes, local responsibility for government will degenerate rapidly and we shall have an all-powerful, centralized government. That prospect is a grave threat to free government today."

He has particularly emphasized the need for increasing local revenue for school purposes and has recommended that local communities, with certain exceptions, be given the right to impose: (A) a retail sales tax of not more than 2 percent on tangible personal property, other than food products, drugs and other enumerated items. (B) A tax on the ownership of motor vehicles at not more than $5 per passenger vehicle and not more than $10 per commercial vehicle, per annum, excepting trucks used exclusively for farming purposes. (C) A tax of not more than 3 percent on restaurant meals and drinks over $1. (D) A tax on alcoholic beverage control retail licenses at not more than 25 percent of the amount of the state license fee. (E) A tax of not more than 3 percent on admissions to amusements. (F) A license tax on vending machines at not more than $10 per machine per year.

Few communities have availed themselves of these privileges because it is easier for school administrators and local politicians to get state aid—but parents ought to study this problem from the standpoint of their participation in the education of their own children.

Diet and Health Home Accidents Are On Increase

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVERY mother of a small child might well read this article. It may be the means of saving her baby's life.

During recent years accidental death and serious injuries among children have markedly increased. The situation is made more tragic by the fact that many of these youngsters have not died in the home—the one place in the world where they should be safe from all harm.

Working Mothers

I don't know whether more mothers are working and leaving their babies in incompetent hands or whether we have simply forgotten earlier lessons learned at great expense, but I suspect a part of our tragic toll is due to the fact that the newest generation of mothers has not been taught the dangers to guard against.

For this reason I would like to review some of the most important hazards to life and health which can surround the child in the home.

Dangers of Poison

In the past, much stress has been put on the dangers of poison, such as lye, rat and ant poisons, the partially used medicines which accumulate so often in the bathroom medicine cabinet. Of course, any poisonous substance should be kept out of the baby's reach, and it is important, both for the protection of adults and children, to get rid of unused medicines as quickly as possible.

Many accidents result from scalding. It is a simple thing to keep pan handles turned around so they cannot be reached by the inquisitive toddler, yet this may ward off serious burns.

Lead poisoning is another danger to which young children are exposed. This hazard, in some measure, is being eliminated by making sure that cribs and toys are not painted with lead-containing paints. To protect the guard rails on cribs, plastic materials are available. There are also aluminum and stainless steel strips which can be employed for this purpose and which are easily installed.

Colored Crayons

Lead poisoning has also been traced to colored crayons. Analysis of school crayons has revealed as much as 1.5 to 12 per cent. of lead by weight in some samples of yellow, orange and green crayons. If the child is given such crayons to use, he must be watched so that he does not put them in his mouth; but this hazard may be eliminated by forbidding the use of such materials.

Formerly, the electrical outlets around baseboards were unprotected, and many children suffered severe accidents. With modern installations this should not be a source of danger but mothers should realize that more electrical equipment is used in the home today than ever before and should have them inspected frequently to see that they are in safe condition. Worn cords and exposed wires offer a perfect method for electrocution, not only of the baby but any other member of the family.

Cleaning Solutions

Some accidents result from the use of inflammable cleaning solutions. Carbon tetrachloride will not burn and is a good cleaning fluid. However, it must be kept out of the child's reach because, if drunk, it will cause severe symptoms. Gates at the tops and bottoms of stairs and securely-fastened windows and screens also help to prevent many unnecessary tragedies.

All of the perils of early life from accidents can be avoided, but it requires attention and thought on the part of parents.

There is no pardon in sight, reliable court sources said, because President Ramon Grau San Martin is busy with state and political matters. His term expires Oct. 10.

Rev. George B. Parkin of Wilmington, superintendent of the Wilmington District of the Methodist Church, will be among the 800 leaders of that denomination who will attend a nation-wide conference in Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 4-5, when the new quadrennial plan of Methodism will be officially launched.

Known as "The Advance for Christ and His Church," the four-year program will have two major objectives—a world-wide preaching and teaching mission to deepen the understanding and devotion of the church's eight and a half million members and an overall increase in giving that will undergird the church's missionary enterprises and overseas relief.

Because of their strategic position as leaders in the church, the 571 district superintendents have been officially called together by Bishop William C. Martin of Dallas, Texas, chairman of the Advance. Sharing with the superintendents in the conference will be the bishops, editors of church papers, board secretaries and other representatives.

were 94,862 white boys born and 89,607 white girls. That, incidentally, gave the male population a 2.4 increase over 1946.

Non-white male births came to 6,184 and non-white female births to 6,176.

What county's population got the greatest assist from the stork last year? According to the report it was Cuyahoga with 35,273 record-births. Hamilton County was next with 19,035.

Summit County edged out Montgomery County for third place by a margin of less than 100. Summit County reported 11,- 818 recorded births and Montgomery 11,761.

Indians Out in Front; Braves Take NL Flag

By RALPH RODEN
(By the Associated Press)
The Boston Braves are "in" today and the Cleveland Indians are brushing their feet on the welcome mat spread for the American League's entry in the 1948 World Series.

Billy Southworth's Braves gained admittance to the World Series yesterday when they clinched their first National League pennant since 1914.

The Indians moved a game in front of the runnerup Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees in the tension taut American League race and are on the threshold of joining the Braves in the Series.

Cleveland, behind the brilliant five-hit pitching of Bobby Feller, downed the Detroit Tigers, 4-1, while the Yanks dumped the Red Sox, 6-2, in the third game of their cut-throat series.

The Indians, like their pursuers, have only five games to play but, unless they suffer a sudden collapse, Manager Lou Boudreau's boys can't miss.

If the Indians win three of their remaining five games, the Red Sox or the Yanks must take all five to beat out the Indians.

At the rate the Indians are moving winning three out of five is a cinch as the Tribe has won nine out of its last ten starts. Another feather in the Indians' bonnet is the fact they play out their schedule at home starting tomorrow night. They take on the last place Chicago White Sox in the opener of a two-game series and then close out with a three-game series against the Tigers.

The Red Sox, although they have lost three out of their last four games, are in a better position to overhaul the Indians than the defending world champion Yankees who finish out on the road.

Boston is at home for the rest of the season and the best tonic for the slumping Sox is Fenway Park's chummy left field wall. The Sox resume the chase against the weak Washington Senators tomorrow in the opener of a three-game series and close out the season with the Yanks.

The Yanks invade Philadelphia for the first of three games tomorrow and Connie Mack's A's are ready. The A's have been idle for the past four days and that means Dick Fowler, Lou Brissie, Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib will be on the firing line.

Feller was supreme yesterday. The big righthander, in bagging his sixth straight win and 18th of the year, fanned nine and didn't walk a batter. Feller's only bad inning was the fourth when, with one out, Vic Wertz, Pat Mullin and Dick Wakefield singled in succession to produce the Tiger's lone run.

Joe Gordon gave Feller a working margin when he hammered Hal Newhouser for his 31st homer with a mate on in the third inning. Feller bunted home Cleveland's third run in the fourth and the Tribe completed its scoring in the seventh. Newhouser, seeking his 20th win, was tagged with his 12th loss.

A capacity crowd of 69,755 fans watched the Yanks make it two out of three over the floundering Sox at the Yankee Stadium. Tommy Heinrich got the Yanks off to

Good Hope Wins From Wilmington To Even Playoff

Good Hope even the baseball title playoff series of the new Southwestern Ohio League at Wilmington Sunday with a lopsided 14 to 8 victory over the Wilmington Legion.

After taking a thumping at the hands of the Legionnaires in the first series game at Wilson Field here the previous Sunday, Tommy Smalley's boys set in with a vengeance that could not be denied in the second game.

Both teams played loose and jittery ball in the field and the total of 11 errors had a very definite bearing on the outcome.

The Good Hope boys scored 14 runs on 11 hits and six Wilmington miscues. They blasted two Legion hurlers, Fife and Ross, with abandon. Rae set the pace for the Fayette Countians at the plate with a double and triple.

Bob Dawes, the curve baller, went the route for Good Hope. He allowed but seven hits, but the five errors made by his mates let the Legionnaires run up the score with eight runs.

The championship game is scheduled for a neutral field at Greenfield for next Sunday. One of the biggest league crowds of the season is expected.

Red Birds Lose To Saints Again

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 27.—(AP)—St. Paul and Columbus face each other tonight for their third clash of the final American Association playoffs before going to Columbus for the rest of the series. The Saints lead 2-0 in the playoffs.

The Saints who grabbed the opener, 12 to 4, came back Sunday with a lucky rabbit's foot and beat the Redbirds 2 to 1 in their best four-of-seven series.

St. Paul was trailing Sunday 1 to 0 in the seventh when their lucky game-winning break came. Johnny Jorgensen singled but was forced at second by Earl Naylor. Eric Tipton singled and Naylor scored on Toby Atwell's hit to left field. Then Tipton scored the winning run as a throw by Mozzoli hit a fielder's glove near second base and took a wild bounce.

Meads Win To Even Series

Chillicothe's Meads today had a chance to lift the SCO League semi-pro baseball crown from the Ashville Reds Sunday when they squared the playoff series, 6 to 2, in a 12-inning battle.

Howard Stout, the Mead center-field, broke up the ball game and put his team back in the running for the title, with a home run clout in the 12th inning with the bases loaded.

Clarence Brown, the Mead mound mainstay, scattered eight hits to get credit for the victory. He struck out six Reds in a row in the extra innings (10th and 11th) when he turned on the heat in earnest.

The final game of the two-out-of-three playoff series is to be held at Chillicothe next Sunday. Proceeds of the game are to go to the league to help meet the expenses of the annual league banquet.

Ohio Village Proud Of Billy Southworth

SUNBURY, Sept. 27.—(AP)—This village on the banks of the Big Walnut creek has another chance to swell up and bust for its Billy Southworth.

Billy is no native son. His 125-acre farm and home is outside the corporation limits. He's only been there since 1940. But he just won the National League pennant with his Boston Braves, something nobody had done for 34 years. He won three other pennants and two world championships with the St. Louis Cardinals. And he sits around and chews the fat.

Out on the rolling lawn of the farm, in front of the big ten room house where Billy spends the off-season with his wife, Mabel, and 13-year-old daughter, Carol, the flag was run up on the tall mast yesterday.

Mrs. Southworth herself rushed from the radio the second the man said "that's the ball game, folks."

and pulled the flag up to tell the Delaware County countryside that her Billy had done it again.

Then she ran to answer the telephone and get the full details from the man himself.

*YOU get more and better gasoline...
WE get a plumbing bill for $16,000,000!*

This is a fluid catalytic cracking unit... better known as a "cat cracker." Its job is to squeeze more gasoline and better gasoline out of each barrel of crude oil. And we're building a new one right now in Lima—to boost your supply of gasoline.

Before the war, a new cat cracker would have cost six or seven million dollars. We are investing $11,000,000 for the one in Lima... plus $5,000,000 more for other refinery changes that will also increase output.

This is just one of the ways Sohio and Sohio dollars are working to meet your growing need for oil. In the last five years we've put more than $140 million into new pipelines, oil wells, plants and equipment, including $33 million spent in connection with finding new sources of crude oil. Quite frankly, funds provided from operations have proved insufficient for such extensive expansion. The additional funds needed came from long-term borrowings and from additional investments in the business by stockholders.*

In 1948, '49 and '50, we plan to invest at least a hundred million more. For a medium-sized company, selling mainly in a single state, these are huge investments. But it takes big money, and big plans, too, to meet today's huge demand for oil—and anticipate tomorrow's.

**How this investment is paying off in increased supply is shown by the fact that last year our refineries processed 32% more crude oil into gasoline, oil and other petroleum products than in our biggest pre-war year... and 24% over the peak war year!*

Car Production Below Average

Chrysler Output Hit By Body Shortage

By DAVID J. WILKIE
DETROIT, Sept. 27—(AP)—Car and truck production this week again was below postwar average, but it could have been a lot worse.

Next week total assemblies must move upward substantially. Settlement of a wage dispute in a car body plant will enable Chrysler and Packard to get back into full production. The dispute had idled both companies for more than a week.

The trade paper Automotive News estimated this week's output at 65,414 passenger cars and 25,314 trucks compared with last week's 65,641 cars and 26,976 trucks. Ward's automotive reports put this week's output at 66,499 cars and 24,740 trucks, compared with the previous week's 62,071 cars and 26,466 trucks.

Most trade sources agree the September output will not go much above 400,000 cars and trucks. Early month schedules called for September production of about 465,000 vehicles.

The halting of body supplies for Chrysler and Packard cut heavily into this month's passenger car output, but much of it can be recovered before the year-end. As a result, the prediction of 5,000,000-unit output this year still is being heard among industry analysts.

So far this year, according to Automotive News, United States plants have built 2,715,596 passenger cars and 1,030,804 trucks. At this time last year car output totaled 2,554,523 while truck assemblies numbered 917,728. At the year's end 3,558,178 cars and 1,239,642 trucks had been built.

Probably the biggest help to the production total right now is coming from Ford Ford lost a lot of volume during the several weeks required to change over to its 1949 models last spring. It also ran into the customary difficulty getting a new car into high level output.

The Ford totals, however, have been moving steadily upward during recent weeks, as assembly line operations smoothed out and parts shortages were overcome. Uninterrupted Ford output for the remainder of the year is counted upon by those industry chroniclers who expect the 1948 total to top 3,000,000 cars and trucks for the second time in industry history.

The first time motor vehicle assemblies went over that mark was in 1929 when 3,538,420 units were built.

The interruption to Packard and Chrysler assembly lines this week cut another 20,000 passenger cars from overall output. Materials troubles also took a couple of days out of Willys-Overland production this week.

Every interruption to current output has some effect on new model planning. One of the effects of the several stoppages in Chrysler output will be a delay in the introduction of 1949 cars. Chrysler has all its new models finally approved but they are not likely to go on sale before early next year—probably in February.

Similarly the new models to be introduced by General Motors have been finalized. Cadillac, with relatively few styling changes, may appear late next month, but few of the others—Buick, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile and Pontiac—are likely to reach individual buyers before the turn of the year.

Studebaker is another of the volume manufacturers unlikely to show its 1949 models before mid-January, according to present indications. Like several other companies that have made major postwar styling changes, Studebaker is not expected to have radically altered lines in its 1949 cars.

SYNOPSIS
Beautiful Gail "Hasty" Rogers, New York model, loves Sam Meredith passionately. She wants him, all the fun and excitement that goes with his career as a newspaper reporter. But, with realistic, adventure-loving Sam, Gail knows there would be no real home life, no security. She is frightened by the poverty of her childhood and so makes up her mind to "Marry for Money." After a gay two-some dinner in Greenwich Village, Sam and Gail repair to her small apartment, shared with two other girls, and once more argue out their marriage problem.

CHAPTER THREE

"OH, SURE," Sam said, "love. A wonderful invention." He pulled Gail to him again, and added roughly, "I love you and you know it. What's the use of talking about it? Maybe I'll like being married to you, maybe I'll be crazy about it."

"For how long?"
"Who knows? We're adult, we're realistic, and we don't know. Do you suppose the kids know, who haven't grown up, who go to the ar with bells ringing, walking on rosy clouds, accompanied by dreams, cupids, innocence? They take a terrific chance and don't know it. We do."

She said, "Sam, when I marry, I'll marry someone I like—someone I—you'll laugh at this, it's pretty corny—someone I respect."

"Someone," he said angrily, "with most of the mint, too?"

"Platinum, mink, emerald-cut diamonds, triplex flats. Gail, for Heaven's sake... if you even had a chance..."

She said evenly, "I think I have. And I don't want money for what it can buy."
"What else is it good for?" he asked helplessly.

She freed herself from his arm. She thought, if we could stop talking... but we can't. We have to talk and be bright and—what was it he said—realistic. If we could stop talking and I could stop thinking. But I can't...

She got up and walked to the windows and he made no move to follow. He took out a pack of cigarettes and his lighter and sat there smoking. He thought, Okay. But tomorrow or next day, I'll phone and say, What about dinner? and she'll say, All right, Sam.

Gail spoke over her shoulder. "Once I made a promise... to myself, and to someone else. I'll keep it."

"What sort of promise, and why?"
"I won't tell you... and I can't tell you why. In order to know why you would have had to know me since I was born."

He said, after a moment, "All right. But I like my mysteries complete with solution. Someone you like and respect, someone with...

heavy dough. Would that be Brad Spencer, by any chance?"
"It could be."
"I introduced you to Spencer," he said, "a couple of months ago. I remember. We went to the Cub Room. The regulars were there and Brad wandered in, with Ike Evans. Ike's a regular, and any pal of his is okay, particularly someone like Brad who never set foot in the better boites. After that, I went out of town, took a swing around the country to see what was cooking. I got back two weeks ago, I've seen you almost every night since."

"You were away quite a while."
"Do you mean to tell me you've been seeing Brad Spencer?"

"Yes."
"You haven't a prayer," he said harshly; "practically every girl in New York, to say nothing of other places, has been thrown at him by the dotting parents. All the rest, given the chance, have thrown themselves."

"I haven't, yet."
Sam went on as if she had not spoken. "And in addition to being the last of the bachelors—and I do mean bachelor—he's a nice guy. Also plenty smart."

"Well, see."
"I like him," said Sam, "and even if I weren't interested... I hate to see him snapped up with the usual spinner. Not that I think he'll bite. But if he does..."

"If he does what?" asked Gail, turning.

He said, "I'd seen him around town in unlikely places, but I never knew him until we sat together in a dirty little cellar in France, and listened to the whizz-bangs. He's quite a person—he deserves the best."

"And I wouldn't be?"
"For man you loved," said Sam, with unusual gentleness, "better than the best. For me, even, unreliable as I am... a fact you've pointed out. But not for Brad. Not that I'm worried," he added mendaciously, "he's not likely to fall. But if he should..."

She said wearily, "If he should, you'll tell him, I suppose? you have a photographic memory for conversations. You rarely take notes, I believe."

He said stubbornly, "Sure, I'll tell him and he'd hate me for it. And you'd try to persuade him I was jealous... dog in the manger stuff."

"Would you be?"
"Yes. But that's not all the reason."

She said, "Don't worry, Sam. If Brad Spencer ever asks me to marry him—"

"Well?"
"I'll say yes, and tell him why."

She walked back toward him, Copyright, 1947, 1948, by Faith Baldwin Cutrell. Published by Rinehart & Company, Inc. (Distributed by King Features Syndicate.)

carrying her slender height like a banner. She said quietly, "Good-bye, Sam."
He rose, by an unfolding process, and took her by the shoulders. She looked small, in contrast, and was forced to look up, which pleased him. He bent his head, kissed, and then released her. He asked, "You mean that, Gail? You still mean it?"

She was white, and so shaken that there was no possible concealment; she could not trust her voice, so nodded mutely.

He said, "I know you too, well... and maybe too little. You don't make sense, baby. We could make a go of it, we could be happier than most people. Think it over."

"No."
"You love me."
"I can't help myself," she said desperately, watched the little familiar smile twitch at the corners of his mouth, and added, "But I'll learn, I swear it!"

"You don't believe that." He went out to the little hall and she made no move to follow him. He came back presently and said, "You haven't seen the last of me. I don't brush off easily."

She heard the door slam, hard; she heard him running down the stairs. "Sam," she said aloud, "Sam..."

She was not asleep when Evie came. Pat came in; they returned late, first Evie, then Pat. Evie looked in on her, opening the door softly, but Gail lay quiet, her eyes closed, until the door shut again.

She knew it was Evie, she could tell by her step, not as quick or as light as Pat's. Later, she heard Pat talking in the room next door.

"Gail in?"
"Sound asleep. I opened her door, she didn't budge."

She heard them moving about, opening drawers, shutting them, running the water in the bathroom. She heard Pat's effortless laughter, and heard Evie say, "Hush, you'll wake her."

She might as well get up and go in the other room and ask, What sort of time did you have, you two? But she had no wish to, no wish to learn, just yet, how Evie had made out with the new man, whether or not Pat had set her wedding date, nor to have them ask, How's Sam?

After a while she heard the windows go up next door and the little rustlings that meant they were settling down. She felt very much alone, and the tears crowded back of her eyes, thick and urgent, her throat was tight and swollen. It isn't easy to cry quietly, especially if you are crying with your heart.

Leniency Questioned For Nazi Murderers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—(AP)—Senator Baldwin (R-Conn) has asked a Senate committee to find why the army cut the sentence of Ilse Koch, convicted in the Buchenwald prison death cases, from life to four years.

The senator sent his request to the armed services committee, of which he was a member.

Baldwin said yesterday in a letter to Army Secretary Royall: "Having talked with several people who know something of this notorious woman, and recalling such irregularities as her giving birth to a child while in custody, I cannot believe other than that this case has revealed a startling reversal of justice."

Ilse Koch, wife of a wartime commandant of the Buchenwald prison, was tried in connection with the deaths and tortures of prisoners. She was accused by army prosecutors of having used the tattooed skin of executed prisoners to make lamp shades.

General Lucius D. Clay, U. S. military governor in Germany, approved a recent recommendation by subordinates that her sentence be reduced.

The "typical" American church is a small one, spending about $3,000 a year.

Greenhouse Fire Blamed on Youth

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27—(AP)—Roy Lingruen, 20, was charged with arson last night in connection with the $100,000 Rocky River Greenhouse Co. fire Sept. 1. The youth, son of the manager, employed at the Greenhouse. He was refused a pay increase shortly before the fire, Detective George J. Jindra said.

NEWS VIEWS

BY RAY BRANDENBURG

The American Congress of Physical Medicine reports a new machine called the electromyograph, which works like television. It picks up the electrical impulses from nerves and muscles and "telecasts" them on a screen. The doctor just tunes in on your impulses and diagnoses your troubles as easily as whistling "Dixie." Maybe the time will come when medicos will sit in their offices and have their patients broadcast their symptoms from home. Sounds fine, unless static enters the picture. But still be a rough day for the doctor if you get your symptoms mixed with a soap opera! There are limits even to medical science.

Traffic Lights Out Three Hours

Traffic lights on the uptown circuit stopped on the amber at 9 P. M. Sunday night, when a cogwheel which had been changed to carry the load temporarily after the lights went out some three weeks ago, was worn so badly it would no longer operate.

Fire Chief George Hall, who had made temporary repairs when the circuit failed before, was notified, and immediately started work of installing new equipment which had been received here soon after the lights failed before, and at 12:02 the lights were in operation once more.

The work of Chief Hall saved expense of an expert from the factory in Syracuse, N. Y., making a special trip here to install the new equipment.

Installation of the new control at the fire department is expected to carry the circuit without further serious interruption for many years.

Pallbearers were Russell Ebert Jr., Robert Kirkpatrick, James Shipley, William Persinger, Ellsworth Bowdle and Frank Cook, all members of the Legion post. # Farmers Urged To Build More Storage Room

Dollar Or Less For Corn Seen Unless Storage Provided

Ohio's 1948 corn crop may become dollar corn or even less, unless farmers build the necessary storage to safely house their big crop and protect their holdings with a government loan or purchase agreement, Dale C. Williams, chairman of the Ohio Production and Marketing Administration committee stated today.

The price support for corn is expected to be about $1.50 per bushel in Ohio. "But someone pulled the props from under the corn support program when the Commodity Credit Corporation's new charter was authorized by Congress July 1st," Williams stated. "Under this charter C.C.C. is restricted to the storage facilities the corporation controlled on July 1st—about 50 million bushels. This is only a fraction of the storage needed for the surplus grains from 1948 bumper crops. The corporation can't buy corn at the support level when it comes to market because it has no storage in which to store it. I hate to think what will happen to corn prices if the surplus corn is dumped on the market this fall. It would certainly be a speculator's paradise."

The farmer has it within his power, however, to make the support program effective by building temporary storage for his corn—storage that will be acceptable to C.C.C. for a loan or insure the grade and quality to enable him to take out a purchase agreement at the support price, it is pointed out. Williams urged every farmer with a storage problem to contact his county AAA office where he can obtain detailed information on sealing requirements, suggestions on patching up old cribs or plans for building new temporary cribs.

Violinist's Finger Is Nearly Severed

As a result of a jack slipping under his automobile when he was attempting to change a punctured tire, Peter J. Graham of Wilmington, Delaware, suffered a badly injured hand Saturday night on the CCC Highway a few miles west of Washington C. H., while he was en route to Cincinnati.

He was taken to the office of Dr. C. G. Hayes who found the upper part of the small finger on his left hand almost completely severed besides bruises on the hand. After first aid, Graham was taken to Doctor's Hospital at Columbus, where the finger was sewed and attending surgeons stated that Graham will have complete use of it.

He had urged Dr. Hayes to save the finger because he was a violin player and did not want to lose it.
